OUT IN MARCH

A New Novel

By

BASIL KING

The Story of a Down-and-Outer Who Found His Soul

Basil King is not afraid of the grim things of life—he is too great an artist—he pictures life naked and stripped of its sham—yet he has touched all with a spiritual fire.

With unforgettable vividness, they move before you—Regina, the girl who dared break her engagement when she knew she couldn't love the man—Lovey, the strange old man with his terrible secret, and a genius for friendship—the man with the power of rebuilding other men, of remaking idle, worthless women—thieves—and a score of people woven into this interesting and ennobling story.

HARPER & BROTHERS --- Established 1817 --- NEW YORK

JACOBS SPRING BOOKS

The Year Between

By DORIS EGERTON JONES

author of "Peter Piper."

Deals with the emotional development of January Ellice, a beautiful little Australian bush waif of seventeen. Into her drab life comes John Berresford, who is thirty-four, but her naive immature simplicity and the difference in their ages prevent him from declaring the love he grows to feel, in spite of her frank distaste for the husband with whom circumstances have united her. The working out of the inevitable triangle, the conviction that comes to John when face to face with death at Gallipoli, where he takes part in the famous Landing of April 25th, that he could not live without Jan, the realization on Jan's part of what a soldier's daily dicing with death might mean for her, ripening her heart to the full and complete flower of womanhood, compels the reader's absorbed attention to the very end.

The Time of Refreshing

A Book of Lenten Meditations for either the Clergy or Laity.

By REV. H. A. WILSON, M.A.

This book of six addresses or sermons with Texts for Lent and Four Meditations for Holy Week, deals with the old truths, and a study of it during the Lenten season will give a new meaning to our faith.

12mo. Cloth. 80 cents.

Kit of Greenacre Farm

By IZOLA L. FORRESTER

author of "Jean of Greenacres," "Polly Page" books, etc.

Miss Forrester concludes in this book the exciting adventures of the younger members of the Robbins family. Jean and her younger sisters, who have already endeared themselves to thousands of young people, again are the central figures in this wholesome series for young girls, and their numerous adventures will be followed with interest.

12mo. Cloth. Colored jacket and inlay. Illustrated. $1.35.

The Twentieth Plane

A Psychic Revelation reported by

ALBERT DURRANT WATSON

The most evidential, the most significant, the most comforting of all the psychic revelations to date. Explains in beautiful and simple language many of those remarkable psychological experiences reported in recent months; as to Lord Kitchener, Edith Cavell and other notables now in astral life. The book makes startling revelations on the death of Sappho, the nature of Plato's Republic, the authorship of the Iliad, the Shakespeare Plays and the Junius Letters.

The reputation of Dr. Watson, who reports the messages, guarantees the sincerity of the book. He is a well known Canadian poet, a fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada and President of the Association of Psychical Research of Canada. "Marvelous" is the only way to describe it.

All 'Round Our House

By RUPERT SARGENT HOLLAND

author of "Lafayette, We Come," "The Historic Series," etc.

Each poem treats of some object around the house or garden. The author has woven little romances and fairy stories around each one for the purpose of instilling in the child a love and sympathy with the things of his own home.

The Dragon on the Teapot comes to life and talks to the child, in the fireplace he sees fairies and on the windowpane he meets Jack Frost, Jack in the Pulpit and the Flitter Mouse talk to him in the garden.

Those who have children will appreciate the stimulating value of these verses.

RALPH CONNOR'S NEW NOVEL

THE SKY PILOT IN

NO MAN'S LAND

It may seem a far cry from the rolling prairies, the foothills and the rugged canyons of the American West to the shell holes and the barbed wire entanglements from the North Sea to the Vosges. Yet the outposts of civilization have shifted within three decades from the Far West to the Near East, and Ralph Connor with rare gift for discerning the great spiritual forces which have determined liberty and freedom discovers to us in this new story that the same men who made the fight for freedom and liberty in

THE SKY PILOT IN NO MAN'S LAND

have once again by their undaunted spirit and high courage won the struggle for humanity and civilization and saved the world from a new order of savagery and brutality. As in his tales of the West this story abounds in humanity, heroism and tenderness—and again, as in the Western books, this one is the dramatic recital of an eye-witness, for Ralph Connor is now as then the beloved Sky Pilot, the friend of ranchmen and of soldiers—a great leader in the cause of freedom and human love.

Copyright Amendment

THE copyright amendatory bill has been introduced into the Senate by Senator Kirby and into the House by Representative Smith, chairman, respectively, of the Senate and House Patents Committee, in the form printed on another page which is understood to have the approval of the copyright office and the Department of State. A formal hearing was held by the House Patents Committee on Tuesday at which Mr. Eric Schuler, secretary of the Authors' League, explained the purpose of the bill. The committee voted a favorable report and unless unexpected opposition should develop, the bill will be put on its passage, should there be opportunity to do so during the closing and crowded days of the current session. It is recalled that both important copyright bills of 1891 and 1909 were passed on the very last day of the respective sessions, in each case during a driving snowstorm, and possibly history and nature may repeat themselves this year.

The Toy Book Season Opens

WHEN "Toy Fair" opens its annual displays in New York in February of each year the toy book publishers are ready, too, with their displays and The Imperial and The Breslin hotels give much evidence that the fall and Christmas seasons of 1919 are now the chief concern of many.

Under the present unusual manufacturing conditions it becomes especially interesting to see how these competitive lines have met the cost problems and how the visiting jobbers will buy in face of the peculiar conditions of 1919 business.

From the confident way that orders are being placed there seems to be full indications that stocks in the small jobber's hands have been stripped to low ebb and that they expect an active business in such merchandise in the season ahead. There can be no doubt that 39 cent counters will be much more common than 25 cent displays, as was the case last year, and 75 cent more common than 50 cent, yet the new displays show excellent results in manufacturing and good values in even the lower prices.

It will be at a little later date that the travelers will be covering the country with these competitive lines and many buyers for book departments have their ears close to the ground trying to get an inkling of a possible lowering of prices in the book field. Whatever may be the changes in other fields it is difficult to see any signs of change in the cost of books in the 1919 season. Paper may change by fractions of a cent and some of the materials in binding be relieved somewhat from war conditions but there are so few signs of reductions and so many to indicate that costs will remain as high or go higher than in 1918 that the buyer who holds off this spring from making his purchases in the competitive field is only likely to get poorer selections in the fall and equal prices.

Foster vs. Callaghan

THE decision of Judge Mack in the Foster vs. Callaghan case is of interest to publishers both for what it does and for what it leaves undone. The court decided that the publisher defendants were at fault in printing a preface which stated that there was no book covering the field of the work which the plaintiff sought to enjoin, despite the fact that the same publishers issued the general work in which the author plaintiff devoted a chapter to the same field. The court, however, did not accept the contention of the plaintiff author that the publisher defendants had no right to publish another book on the same subject as that of the plaintiff's book.

As a matter of fact, it would be contrary both to publishing practice and to the interest of the public if publishers could be restrained from printing more than one book in the same field. Two books by different authors would not be identical in appeal, whereas two books by the same author in the same field, issued by different publishers, would be directly in competition. This is the reason of course why the normal publishing contract restrains an author from publishing another book on the same subject thru another publisher, altho the publisher is not restrained from printing other books by other authors in the same field.

Good Book-making

AMONG the books of the last month that have come to this office, we have selected five as being interesting examples of good book-making—interesting from various points of view. All the conditions in the manufacturing market are such as make difficult the problems of the manufacturing man, and make the more creditable the successful planning of new volumes.

"Religion and the War" by E. Hershey Sneath, Yale University Press, is a slim octavo size $9\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{8}$, with an excellently planned type-page that measures $6\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{1}{8}$. The book is one of 178 pages, and the paper is such that the volume is decidedly pleasant to handle, while the broad page and good margin make the type extremely pleasant to the eye. The title-page is well designed and the binding an extremely neat blue cloth with lettering that is very legible for so thin a back. This size and form of book might well be used for many volumes that are now planned for thick 12 mos.

Knopf has made an interesting volume in Percy MacKaye's "Washington, the Man Who Made Us." The type-page is very effective for dramatic composition, the heading being in ten-point italic caps, and the use of italics thru the text being very well handled. This book has been appropriately bound in the buff and blue of the colonial times, and the blue stain used for the top instead of gilt.

Stanton & Van Vliet Company of Chicago have used offset color work to great advantage in their volume called "Mother Goose and Her Gosslings." The illustrations by C. M. Burd and Violet Higgins have been very successfully reproduced, and the black and white have been carefully fitted to the typographical setting. The elongated shape and bright colored cover would make an appeal to children.

The Macmillan Company sent an excellently designed octavo in General Gourko's "War and Revolution in Russia." The type-page is exceptionally good for this class of publication, and the volume opens with a pleasant freedom in the binding, and the blue binding has a very artistic lettering on the back.

Marshall Jones Company is showing real care in book manufacture in a small volume called "The Truth About the Jameson Raid." It is very pleasing in typography and has a most attractive title-page with the pleasing monogram design of the company.

Albany Legislation

AMENDATORY bill No. 384 has been introduced into the New York legislature by Senator Walker, requiring publishers to keep accounts in the case of books involving royalties to authors, "showing the sales of and order for such publications, the persons to whom and the prices at which such sales are made," and making failure to keep such accounts a misdemeanor.

The amendment seems unnecessary and meticulous, and we understand that the Authors' League is not responsible for it and has no official knowledge of its origin. It does not seem to have any real value for any interest and this should be made clear to legislators.

BILL NO. 384

State of New York

In Senate, February 5, 1919.

Introduced by Mr. Walker—read twice and ordered printed, and when printed to be committed to the Committee on the Judiciary.

An Act to amend the general business law, in relation to books to be kept by publishers.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Article twenty-six of chapter twenty-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act relating to general business, constituting chapter twenty of the consolidated laws," is hereby amended by inserting therein a new section, to follow section three hundred and ninety-eight, to be section three hundred and ninety-nine, to read as follows:

§ 399. Books to be kept by publisher. Any person doing business in this state as a publisher of books, pamphlets, sheet music or other musical compositions, where the authors or composers thereof have disposed of their rights to such publisher in consideration of royalties to be received, shall keep full and accurate books showing the sales of and orders for such publications, the persons to whom and the prices at which such sales are made. Such books shall be open to inspection by the author or composer on his demand. Failure to keep such full and accurate books, or to keep the same open to inspection or the entry therein of any false statement shall constitute a misdemeanor and shall be punishable as such.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

To American Publishers of Trade Books:

Mr. T. E. Donnelley, formerly of the War Industries Board has now been honored by receiving from the Secretary of the Department of Commerce of the United States the appointment of Counsellor in connection with the paper, publishing and printing trades. He states that the Secretary desires a close affiliation between our industries and the Department of Commerce and is anxious that such regulations of industry established by the War Industries Board as resulted in real economies in production and distribution should be perpetuated. Accordingly, Mr. Donnelley suggests that, should our industry deem it advisable to continue any of these regulations or adopt other co-operative measures, we hold a meeting of such members of the industry as we think wise and come to an agreement. He promises if this be done to make an appointment between us and the Secretary so that our suggestions may be laid before him and if thought wise by him may receive his sanction as trade customs. Mr. Donnelley goes on to say: "I believe this procedure, resulting in giving to trade customs the weight of government approval, would do much towards making those customs more readily accepted by those members of your industry who have heretofore hesitated in co-operating with the trade."

The Business Committee of The American Publishers' Copyright League has just held a meeting and has unanimously endorsed the suggestion of Mr. Donnelley, with special reference to the "on sale" question. The Committee will recommend to the meeting of the League, to be held on Tuesday, March 4, at four p. m. at The Yale Club, that the organization shall endorse the suggestion and shall request Mr. Donnelley to make an appointment between the Secretary of Commerce and such representatives of the League as may be chosen for the purpose.

The Business Committee invites publishers of trade books, etc., who are not members of the League to attend this meeting.

* * * * *

(The former regulations of The War Industries Board in question were covered by the letter of November 27, 1918, written by Mr. Donnelley and approved by Mr. Baruch, Chairman of the Board, in which the regulations for trade books, etc., were withdrawn. This letter, however, "strongly recommended that certain features of the regulations be retained." It went on to say, "During many years of sharp competitive business conditions wasteful practices have developed which the publishers have recognized but have been unable to eliminate." Of the regulations "the following rules have been unanimously agreed upon as good business practices and their adoption as trade customs is strongly recommended by the War Industries Board:

"All shipments of books 'on sale,' 'on consignment,' or 'protected' shall be prohibited, except in cases where it has been customary to solicit by traveling salesmen, and these salesmen of a publishing house have been unable to solicit an advance order for any particular publication (because of time limitation between the receipt of the manuscript and the publication of the book), in which event the publisher may ship a sample order 'on sale'; but such an 'on sale' shipment to any of the large jobbers shall in no case be in excess of 100 copies, and no such 'on sale' shipment to any other dealer shall be in excess of five copies. Such an 'on sale' shipment shall not be repeated for the same title. This restriction applies to 'on sales' to all retailers no matter where located.

"No 'on sale' shipment shall be made for display or any other purpose except as stated in previous paragraph, and no rebate shall be made for unsold stock, save in exceptional cases where the public interest justified publishing within a year from date of original issue a cheap reprint of a 'miscellaneous' book—when a proportionate rebate may be paid booksellers on their unsold stock of the original higher priced edition.")

COPYRIGHT AMENDMENT PROGRESS AT WASHINGTON

Bill Recently Introduced in Congress

The amendatory copyright bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Kirby (Bill S. 5582) and into the House by Rep. Charles B. Smith (Bill H. R. 15853).

A BILL TO AMEND SECTIONS EIGHT AND TWENTY-ONE OF THE COPYRIGHT ACT APPROVED MARCH FOURTH, NINETEEN HUNDRED AND NINE.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that sections eight and twenty-one of the Act entitled "An Act to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting copyright," approved March fourth, nineteen hundred and nine be amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 8. That the author or proprietor of any work made the subject of copyright by this Act, or his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall have copyright for such work under the conditions and for the terms specified in this Act: Provided, however, That the copyright secured by this Act shall extend to the work of an author or proprietor who is a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation, only—

"(a) When an alien author or proprietor shall be domiciled within the United States at the time of the first publication of his work, or

"(b) When the foreign state or nation of which such author or proprietor is a citizen or subject grants, either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens, or copyright protection substantially equal to the protection secured to such foreign author under this Act or by treaty; or when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States may, at its pleasure, become a party thereto.

"The existence of the reciprocal conditions aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States, by proclamation made from time to time, as the purposes of this Act may require: Provided, however, That all works made the subject of copyright by the laws of the United States first produced or published abroad after August first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, and before the date of the President's proclamation of peace, of which the authors or proprietors are citizens or subjects of any foreign state or nation in whose behalf a copyright proclamation has been issued or may be issued by the President of the United States, shall be entitled to the protection conferred by the copyright laws of the United States from and after the accomplishment, before the expiration of fifteen months after the date of the President's proclamation of peace, of the conditions and formalities prescribed with respect to such works by the copyright laws of the United States: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive any person of any right which he may have acquired by the republication of such foreign work in the United States prior to the approval of this Act.

"SEC. 21. That in the case of a book published abroad in the English language after the date of the President's proclamation of peace, the deposit in the copyright office, not later than sixty days after its publication abroad, of one complete copy of the foreign edition, with a request for the reservation of the copyright and a statement of the name and nationality of the author and of the copyright proprietor, and of the date of publication of the said book, shall secure to the author or proprietor an ad interim copyright, which shall have all the force and effect given to copyright by this Act, and shall endure until the expiration of four months after such deposit in the copyright office."

Some modifications were made in the joint conferences of publishers, authors and copyright authorities, and the latest draft is given. These modifications were chiefly those to protect publishers who in good faith have republished foreign works which have fallen into the public domain, and to make the term of ad interim protection in all six months, this being the time limit proposed in the negotiations between the British authorities and our Department of State, thru reciprocal action extending protection of our own authors under war conditions to a year after first publication.

A conference was held in Washington early in the month between representatives of the Authors' League and representatives of the Typographical Unions for the discussion of the repeal of the manufacturing clause. The authors presented facts to show that the manufacturing clause had not helped the printers, and that more editions were likely to be manufactured in this country if that restriction were removed, and the representatives of the printers displayed an open mind and appointed a committee to consider the proposal and examine in detail the evidence brought forward. As the extension of the ad interim provision to six months is for the purpose of making it more possible to manufacture editions in this country, it is expected that the representatives of the Typographical Unions will cordially assent to the amendment of Sec. 21. It is not expected that a provision that a bill for the repeal of the manufacturing clause will be proposed until there has been ample time for discussion and agreement.

AN INTERESTING SERIES OF BOOKSTORE ADVERTISEMENTS

The whole subject of book advertising is difficult, and bookstores as well as publishers are constantly revising their methods in order to better reach the small and elusive group who make up the book-buying public. The retailers' problem is even more difficult than the publishers' as the use of sufficient space to make striking displays in any large city newspaper has proved a burdensome outlay to any who have undertaken it.

Most bookstores that have experimented with newspaper space have come to use small and frequently repeated advertisements, placing these on the established book pages or on the pages that are most likely to be turned to by the bookish sort of people.

Any user of small space, however, is in constant danger of being smothered by the large displays adjoining and the best answer to this difficulty seems to be to give such distinction of typography or design to the small display that it shall stand out attractively to every eye.

In the fall and Christmas season a series of advertisements placed by Himebaugh & Browne in the New York papers attracted considerable favorable attention and brought such excellent returns to the store that they seem especially worthy of comment.

They represent an effort to combine illustrative suggestion and descriptive text in a minimum space on the theory that a small dose, or a single idea kept up repeatedly and relentlessly with constant variation is better than spasmodic or isolated "big ads," and that little simple sketches with hand lettering instead of type, the whole rather purposely crude and "free," give distinction and personality with a minimum of effort.

Four of these advertisements are here reproduced from the original zinc plates thru the courtesy of Himebaugh & Browne and of the New York Times and The Dial, where they appeared. Mr. Askowith of Weil-Biow-Weill planned this campaign.

Bookstores, as a rule, can use but small space as compared with other stores and the need, therefore, of making that space have distinction and interest becomes of great importance, and such experiments as this should get careful consideration.

ROGER FOSTER vs. CALLAGHAN & CO.

The case of Roger Foster, author of "Federal Procedure," first published by the Boston Book Co. and later in 1913 in a fifth edition by Callaghan & Co., against the last named publishers who issued in 1916 Byrne's "Federal Criminal Procedure," was heard in the U. S. District Court in New York City by Judge Julian W. Mack. His decision, rendered last week orally, is given below. Byrne's work contained a preface signed by the author, in which it was stated that "heretofore the law of criminal procedure in federal courts has been ascertainable only by means of a search thru hundreds of United States statutes and thousands of cases," altho Foster's work, as issued by the same publishers, contained a chapter summarizing this specific subject.

TEXT OF THE DECISION

"Gentlemen, in my judgment this agreement was an exclusive license to publish this book for a period of ten years, subject to the condition (and because subject to the condition, a license revocable for breach of the condition) that the covenants assumed by the publisher would be carried out. A technical trust relation is not thereby created, in the sense of the publisher becoming the trustee of the licensee by reason of the use of the copyright being confided to the publisher during that period.

On the other hand, there is a personal relation established between the parties, which necessarily imposes certain fiduciary obligations that may in a proper case be asserted in a court of equity. The measure of the obligations assumed, however, is to be determined both from the character of the business carried on by the defendant and from the terms of the contract itself.

Callaghan & Co. have been publishers of law books for many years. The book in question was a well known and well established work, and they were given the exclusive right under the contract to publish it for this period of ten years in its fifth edition. They had therefore been given some rights, the nature of which is not in evidence, in the fourth, and I think in the third edition. The question is, what are the obligations which are expressly assumed and which are implied from the contract and from the relation of the parties?

Callaghan & Co. were under an express obligation to promote the sale of the book and to advertise the book. That means, of course, to promote the sale in all good faith and to advertise it in all good faith. Does the promotion of the sale of the book impose a negative obligation that they shall not publish any law book at any time during the ten years that may be competitive to this book? Perhaps it is unnecessary to answer the question as broadly stated as this is. It may be put in a more limited form: Does it prohibit them from publishing a book competitive as to one specific subject matter out of half a dozen or more covered by the general book?

I think that under the evidence it should be assumed, for the purposes of this case that the plaintiff's book comprehensively covers the subject matter of Federal criminal procedure down to the date of its publication in 1913, and that a book covering the same subject matter is for all practical purposes competitive. I think the Byrne book is competitive to that part of the Foster book that covers Federal criminal procedure. So the direct question must be answered, whether Callaghan & Co. have a right during the ten year period to publish another work.

Looking at the contract, there is an express prohibition as to the plaintiff competing with his own book during that period. There is no express prohibition as to Callaghan & Co. publishing a competitive work. The fact that Callaghan & Co. were general book publishers was well known to both parties. The insertion of the express agreement as to plaintiff, in my judgment, forbids the implication, even if without that express prohibition such an implication would have been permissible. I say it is unnecessary to pass on an obligation on the part of Callaghan & Co. not to publish a volume such as Foster. I do not pass upon a book competitive in all respects with Foster's Federal Practice. I limit myself to the case before me and in that connection it is to be noted that the Byrne book is a one-volume book, covering only a specific head, even tho that same head is adequately treated in Foster's Federal Practice; and therefore it may well appeal to a different element.

The parties must have known of the possibility of publications of works of this kind, and if it was intended that any such prohibition should be imposed upon Callaghan & Co. similar to that which was imposed upon the plaintiff, or the lesser one that would have been sufficient for the case at hand, it would have been a very simple matter expressly to have stated this in the contract. I am of the opinion that the failure expressly to impose the obligation combined with the express prohibition on the plaintiff must lead to the conclusion that no such obligation was intended by the parties, and in the absence of such an intention no such obligation can be implied. Therefore, any injunction against the publication of Byrne's book must be denied.

Now, as to the advertising. This case was begun, not in 1916, but in 1917, and the question of a negative injunction or a positive injunction as to the advertising must be determined from the condition at the time that the suit was brought. If there had been any dereliction in the advertising prior to the complaints by plaintiff in the fall of 1916 and those derelictions amounted to a breach of the contract, the plaintiff had his remedy, either by terminating the license or by suing at law for the breach, but so far as a court of equity is concerned it is clear that at the time that this suit was brought and for some time prior thereto the defendant had both advertised and had shown no disinclination properly to advertise the plaintiff's book. There was at that time no danger, no threatened danger of a violation of the obligation properly to advertise. Therefore, there is no basis for a court of equity issuing a mandatory injunction or an affirmative injunction, or a conditional or negative injunction, on the subject of advertising.

The third point presents more difficulties. It was the duty of the defendant to abstain from such conduct within the limits of a reasonable pursuit of its own business, such as, under the first heading in this opinion, in my judgment the defendant was permitted to do. Subject to that it was the defendant's duty, in pursuance of its obligation to promote the sale and advertise the book, not to indulge in any conduct that would tend to be destructive of or that would tend to diminish the sale of the book. In so far as the advertising of Byrne's book in a proper way would have the tendency to diminish any sales of plaintiff's book, the plaintiff is without remedy, because the defendant is acting within its rights. In so far, however, as the defendant has gone beyond that, in so far as the defendant's conduct has been beyond the realm of fair and reasonable competition with the plaintiff's book, it would be contrary to the express obligation and the implications from the express obligation that were assumed by it. And that brings us to the question whether or not the publication of this book containing this preface and these lines in this preface would naturally tend to injure the sale of the plaintiff's book. If it were a case of advertising Byrne's book and in those advertisements inserting statements similar to those contained in the preface, the situation in my judgment would be clear, because such advertising would be equivalent to a statement by the publishers that, in their judgment, Byrne is the first to deal adequately and comprehensively with the subject matter, the expression of an opinion which not only, in my judgment, is contrary to the fact but which, whether contrary to the fact or not, the defendants were under obligations to refrain from making.

The real difficulty is that this statement is not in an advertisement but is in the preface of Byrne's book. It is Byrne's statement, but that does not excuse the defendant, because the defendant is the owner of the copyright, and even if it were not the owner of the copyright, the defendant has control of the book as owner of the copyright, the defendant may be under obligation to refrain from saying things which, if said by a third person, would afford no remedy. It is not a question of whether the statement is libelous or not, it is not a question of whether the statement is mere "puffing" or not; because while Byrne may puff his own book, still if the "puffing" implies a false statement with reference to the plaintiff's book, the defendant is under obligation to refrain from such "puffing."

As I say, my doubt is due to the fact that this is contained in the preface and not in the advertising, but despite the doubt I am inclined to believe that there is danger in the spreading of this statement by the defendant's activities, and its becoming known in the profession and thereby amounting to something equivalent to an advertisement by defendant of its opinion as to the plaintiff's book. In my judgment the plaintiff need not prove any specific instances of damage. If on the face of it there is danger of damage, if on the face of it it is an unauthorized and an improper statement, a statement so far as the defendant is concerned which may result in injury to the plaintiff, the very fact that he cannot prove the damages, the very fact that the damages are not susceptible of calculation, would warrant a court of equity in interfering, in view of the relations of the parties, with the continuance of such publication.

I cannot find for the plaintiff that there has been such proof of damages as would justify either an accounting or an award of damages. I do find for the plaintiff that the statement as published by the defendant is unauthorized. It is very clear that the statement does not mean that since 1913 and up to 1916 there have been hundreds of statutes and thousands of decisions. The statement clearly means that there was not any book in which the statutes and decisions covering this subject matter have ever been—or, limiting it to a reasonable time theretofore, have within a reasonable time theretofore been collected in a comprehensible way.

Whether or not that statement would give rise to an action at law against Byrne is of course entirely beyond the range of this case. No opinion is intimated thereon. But that the statement is contrary to the fact seems to me to be clear under the evidence.

In my opinion, therefore, a decree should go against the defendant enjoining the continuance of this book without the elimination of the objectionable statement or its modification so as to indicate that it is limited to the period subsequent to the publication of the fifth edition of Foster or that in the judgment of the writer of the preface no such comprehensive discussion of the subject is to be found in any single volume work. If the statement in the preface is so modified as to exclude the possibility of referring to Foster's Practice, the continuance of the sale will no longer be enjoined.

The decree may be prepared accordingly.

Thomas Nelson & Sons announce that Nelson's History of the War by John Buchan will be completed in 24 volumes. Vol. 21 is now ready and the other three volumes will be issued at short intervals so that the entire history will be finished in the spring of this year. It tells of the events of the world war as they transpired, and is therefore complete and reliable.

AMONG THE PUBLISHERS

THE BOOK-TRADE will welcome for its own reading as well as for the reading of its customers the new Christopher Morley book entitled "The Haunted Bookshop."

H. K. FLY & Co. announce for spring publication "The Land of Strong Men," a story of ranch life by A. M. Chisholm, and "If You Believe It, It's True" by Perley Poor Sheehan.

IN VIEW OF the nation-wide ratification of the Prohibition Amendment, the Revell Co.'s issuance of Captain Richmond P. Hobson's "Alcohol and the Human Race" is most timely.

MRS. WALDO RICHARDS' anthology of garden and nature poems entitled "The Melody of Earth" is to be published by Houghton Mifflin Co. in a special Easter edition of olive green leather.

"CHRISTOPHER AND COLUMBUS" is the title of a new book by the author of "Elizabeth and her German Garden" on the spring list of Doubleday, Page & Co.; it is expected to appear about the middle of March.

THE FIRST COMPLETE narrative of the University of Pennsylvania's career and associations is to be issued in a limited edition of "The University of Pennsylvania: Franklin's College" which the J. B. Lippincott Co. will publish this season.

AMONG THE MOST INTERESTING of Putnam's February publications is a book of poems, "In Flanders Fields" by John McCrae, whose single poem of the same name has probably touched more hearts than any other bit of war verse that has been written.

MAETERLINCK'S latest play "The Burgomaster of Belgium," pronounced in England "the greatest play of the war," will be brought out in book form in this country at an early date by Dodd, Mead & Co., under the title "The Burgomaster of Stilemonde."

ONE OF THE most important Scribner announcements for the spring is the publication on March 7th of Henry Van Dyke's "The Valley of Vision," a collection of short stories uniform in form with Dr. Van Dyke's "The Blue Flower," "Fisherman's Luck," and other volumes.

"GOAT FEATHERS," an article by Ellis Parker Butler which appeared in the January American Magazine, aroused so much comment and enthusiasm at the time that Houghton Mifflin Co. has decided to take it over and make it into a small-sized book to appear early in March.

IF THE INCREASING interest in bee-keeping that has been manifest in the last few years shall be continued there should be good demand for Dudant's "First Lessons in Bee-keeping" and Langstroth "On the Honey Bee" as published by the American Bee Journal at Hamilton, Ill.

A NEW BOOK by Thomas Burke, "Out and About London" is promised by Holt for publication early in March. This volume was written in response to the demands of readers of "Nights in London" and "Limehouse Nights" for more of this Irishman's portrayal of London atmosphere.

"AMALIA," a new Dutton publication is a translation by Mary J. Serrano of the famous novel by the Argentine author, José Mar-mol, which for forty years has been read by Spaniards, Russians, Poles, Germans and Frenchmen, but has never before appeared in adequate English form.

THERE IS "news quality" in a note which comes from the Marshall Jones Co. to the effect that there will soon be available a new and revised edition of "The Nemesis of Mediocrity" by Ralph Adams Cram. According to the author, a postscript will be added to the work, for since its writing real leadership has developed, tho exclusively, among what may be called men of action.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. announce that Rudyard Kipling has prepared a new volume of verse for publication this spring. The volume will include, in addition to all of Mr. Kipling's war poems, some selections which have never before been published. It will be of standard size and will appear in the regular uniform cloth and leather editions of the author's earlier works under the title "The Years Between."

JOHAN BOJER'S NOVEL, "The Great Hunger," which won for its author the honors of the French Academy, is now in its second printing. The book was published by Moffat, Yard & Co. on January 15th, and ten days later the entire edition was exhausted. This novel, which deals with man's search for the understanding of himself, has been the subject of magazine and newspaper articles by such men as John Galsworthy, Joseph Herge-sheimer, and James Branch Cabell.

WHETHER OR NOT the servant girl of the future is to have an eight-hour working day is the subject of an interesting experiment just begun by the Board of Education, the U. S. Employment Service of New York, and other organizations planning to open a school where servants will be trained to work on this basis. In this connection it is interesting to note how the whole vexing problem of servants was disposed of by Mrs. Mary Pattison in her book "The Business of Home Management" recently published by Robert M. McBride & Co.

THE "RECONSTRUCTION" CONVENTION OF THE A. B. A.

Boston, May 13, 14, 15, 1919

News from Boston is highly encouraging. The Entertainment Committee is holding special meetings of the Booksellers of Boston and vicinity, and is preparing to make the Convention a memorable occasion so far as entertaining the delegates is concerned. Both from a literary and a historical standpoint Boston is pre-eminently fitted to serve as the seat for such a conference.

All Booksellers who possibly can should plan to be at "the Hub" at this time. Begin now to plan for it. Consider the trip as a business investment; it is one that will surely pay. Three days spent with fellow Booksellers from different sections of the country will bring new views and new ideas that can be applied to your own business.

Congressman David J. O'Connell (of Funk & Wagnalls Co.) has volunteered to handle the problem of railroad transportation by special cars to Boston. He handled the Chicago trip and did it so successfully that we can readily promise a safe trip and royal good time for everyone.

COMMUNICATION

The Decimal System for Paper

January 28th, 1919.

Editor, PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

I have read with considerable interest the article in your January 18th issue, concerning a new decimal system for the standardization of weights on book and cover papers.

D. Appleton & Company, as large users of both these qualities of paper are, naturally, very much interested in this article, as it shows progress along the lines of office efficiency and also possibly an economy in manufacture.

I am entirely in accord with any system which will minimize the size of sheets, thereby enabling the paper mill to make an additional saving in manufacturing by using the full width of the machine—all side rolls being cut off and put in stock for future requirements. I believe that this would be not only a saving to the mill, but would also be of indirect benefit to the publisher and reading public on account of less wastage in manufacturing.

You write further of limiting weights to "substance numbers" such as we have been working under during the last year or so with 25x38 as the basic size and upon which all weights are to be figured. I believe that here you have an almost insurmountable difficulty due to the fact that no two paper mills given the same raw ingredients and water will manufacture an article of given weight or bulk. Why this should be I do not know, but the fact remains that it is so. If we could secure substance weights which are consistent with a uniformity of bulk the idea would be a good one.

In your article I note that the old-fashioned ream is entirely eliminated and everything in future is to be figured by the 1,000 sheets, the standard of size being 1,000 sheets of paper—one inch square and that the weight of this one inch column is to be multiplied by the number of square inches in a given size sheet in order to arrive at the substance number.

It is necessary to take into consideration the fact, as mentioned above, that different mills do not make the same weight of paper with the same raw material and, further, that they do not bulk their papers the same and unless these mill weights and bulks are standardized there will be as many substance numbers and weights as there are different mills, which would in reality mean as much computation as the present system.

I believe that these are very important questions and should be given full consideration—not with the idea of in any way hindering the adoption of a new system, but rather—possibly helping it.

Any further information which you receive on this subject will be greatly appreciated.

D. APPLETON & COMPANY,

Per L. P. KOLLMAN.

A Visit from Philip Gibbs

Philip Gibbs, the famous English war correspondent, whose daily descriptive stories of the fighting in which the British armies participated, and particularly the "big shows" in which the Canadians won their laurels, were followed by thousands of readers both in America and Great Britain, has just arrived in this country for a visit of two months.

Mr. Gibbs spent much of his time with the Canadian forces at the front. His brilliant despatches which appeared daily for many months in the New York Times, and his books, "From Bapaume to Passchendaele" and "The Battles of the Somme" (published by Doran) have been eagerly read by thousands.

Periodical Notes

The Canadian Bookman is a new and attractive quarterly whose first number appeared in January, 1919. It is edited by B. K. Sandwell, and published by the Industrial and Educational Press, Ltd., Ste. Anne de Bellevue, P. Q. The editorial office is at 30 Board of Trade Bldg., Montreal.

Boston Convention Committee Active

At an enthusiastic meeting of the book-trade of Boston and vicinity Friday, February 14th, the following committees were selected for the forthcoming convention of the American Booksellers' Association to be held in Boston, May 13, 14 and 15, as follows: executive committee, Charles E. Lauriat, Jr., of the Charles E. Lauriat Co., chairman; Richard F. Fuller, of the Old Corner Bookstore, treasurer; Roger L. Scaife, of the Houghton Mifflin Co., Vernon M. Schenck, of the Pilgrim Press and Henry S. Hutchinson, of New Bedford; banquet committee, Hulings C. Brown, of Little, Brown & Company, chairman; reception and entertainment committee, Ralph T. Hale, of Small, Maynard & Co., chairman; publicity committee, Herbert F. Jenkins, of Little, Brown & Company, chairman.

Preliminary plans were made to entertain the visiting booksellers and the expectation was expressed that there would be a large attendance at the convention. The convention sessions will be held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, which will be headquarters. Various forms of entertainment will be provided, including an opportunity to visit the places of historic and literary interest in and around Boston. There will be a banquet in the evening of the closing day of the convention, Friday, May 15th.

Pig Leather Is Scarce

Pigskin is a wonderfully tough and exceedingly beautiful leather. But the person who buys a pigskin traveling bag, portfolio, purse or book and pays a very high price for the same can hardly see how this price is justified when he considers the immense number of pigs slaughtered every day to keep the world in pork, ham and bacon.

The truth of the matter is that very little pigskin is ever tanned into leather. The pig leather industry is chiefly confined to Scotland and Germany, the reason being that the skins are left on the carcasses in almost all the other parts of the world. Altho in normal times a pigskin is worth about a dollar and fifty cents, yet it is seldom removed from the carcass. One reason is the great difficulty of flaying the animal. It appears to be almost impossible by present methods to remove the skin without cutting away a large quantity of fat, and the value of the skin compared to the loss of weight of the meat offers very little inducement to remove the skin, in addition to which, the custom of leaving the rind on bacon and pork effectually prevents any attempt at present to increase the supply of pigskin.

Personal Notes

MR. ROBERT S. LYND has become Book Advertising Manager for Charles Scribner's Sons, succeeding Mr. Whitney Darrow, whose appointment as Sales Manager we announced recently. Mr. Lynd is well known to the book trade from his several years' connection with the editorial management of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. His wide and varied knowledge of all phases of book trade activities obtained in that work should stand him in good stead in this important new place, and his many New York friends will probably be glad that he is not returning to Boston where he had served a few months with the Atlantic Monthly before entering military service.

GENERAL MALONE, author of the West Point Series (Penn), is in Luxemburg at present with the 5th Division. He was most fortunate to come thru the war without a scratch, as he was in the firing line from the beginning of the American hostilities until the end. He has received the Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished War Service Medal.

MR. DAVID MOSKOWITZ, for several years connected with Brentano's, is now with Stones in the old book business at 137 Fourth Avenue.

GEORGE R. D. SCHIEFFELIN, who has been serving as a lieutenant in the Army in France for the past year and a half, has just returned from France and is again with Charles Scribner's Sons in the executive offices.

FRANK H. SIMONDS, author of "A History of the World War," has been made a Knight of the Legion of Honor by the French Government.

THE WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS

This list aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publications. Pamphlets will be included only if of special value. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. When not specified the binding is cloth. Imprint date is stated [or best available date, preferably copyright date, in brackets] only when it differs from year of entry. Copyright date is stated only when it differs from imprint date; otherwise simply "c." No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n. d.]

Sizes are indicated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Ts. (32mo: 12½ cm.) Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

A NEW DEPARTMENT

Beginning with this month and continuing thru the active season in the rare book world, THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is planning to carry on a new department under the heading displayed on these pages.

Every indication points to the fact that America is more and more to enlarge its place as the trading center for rare books, and exceptional activity during this season when the war is only just behind us augurs well for the activity that is to follow.

This department will be under the special charge of Mr. Frederick M. Hopkins whose long experience in the auction field and present close contact with its activities gives him opportunity to speak authoritatively and interestingly about the happenings in the rare book world.

Advertising in this section will be accepted up to the limit of two columns and at the following rates: half column, $9.00; quarter column, $5.00; eighth column or one inch, $2.50. News items for this page can be sent to Mr. Hopkins care of this office, and advertising will be received up to Monday of the week of publication.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

A copy of Gammer Gurton's Needle will shortly be sold at Sotheby's in London. The Herschel V. Jones copy, recently sold at Andersons, brought $10,000.

The average per lot of the two parts of the Jones Sale taken together is $195—50% higher than the average in the Hoe Sale and the highest ever reached in a book auction sale.

The appreciation of real association books has been steadily growing in recent years. This is shown in the prices which books of Dickens, Thackeray, Stevenson, and many other authors have brought at auction. But the volume autographed by request can never be regarded as an association book of the right kind. It is fortunate that as a speculation such autographed books are not worth the trouble and expense.

Mr. Courville's annual volume of "Autograph Prices Current," containing a record of prices for which autographs have sold in England during the past season, has made its appearance. The highest price for years was for the Hamilton-Nelson Correspondence, comprising upwards of 1050 letters which brought $12,500. There is hardly a name of great importance in English history that is not included in the volume, and owing to its unusual size and wide range it contains much of interest to dealers and collectors.

What is probably one of the earliest newspapers ever issued is in the coming Jones Sale, in the form of an Italian sheet of four pages, uncut and unopened, printed in Florence in 1562, and reprinted September 10, 1562, in Rimini, by Giov de Nicola of Modena. It contains an account of a disgraceful event in Polish history. At the time of the Council of Trent, one of the first moves of the newly created order of Jesuits was to save Poles for Rome. The Veronese bishop, Luigi Lipomano, was sent as a Papal Nuncio to Poland to induce the Polish parliament to introduce censorship and the inquisition, to abrogate the liberty of conscience, rights of the Jews, and to enlarge the jurisdiction of the Church Courts. The description of this event was sent by Lipomano to Pope Paul IV in the form of a letter, and published in an Italian translation as a news-sheet in several towns in 1562, of which this is a copy.

The thirteenth and final sale of the great collection of prints formed by Frederic R. Halsey ended with a four session sale on February 14. The receipts for this sale were $49,424; the grand total for the entire collection, $438,371.85. An engraving in color of Louis XV of France by L. M. Bonnet sold for $5600. In a previous sale Janinet's L'Aven Difficile brought $11,000, the highest price ever paid for a print in America.

RARE BOOKS, AUTOGRAPHS AND PRINTS

The library of John Wm. Roy Crawford will be sold at the Anderson Galleries, Park Ave. and 59th Street on February 24, 25, 26 and 27. The catalog contains 987 items of great variety and interest. There are a large number of books on the North American Indians, their history, captivities, portraits, etc.; rare Americana and books on Western travel; color plate books, and works with costume plates; rare illustrated books by George Cruikshank, including Grimm's German Popular Stories, rare first issue; fourth folio Shakespeare; first editions; collected and standard sets and several valuable extra-illustrated items. The Americana include Hubbard's New England, 1677; Maximilien de Wied's Travels, 7 vols.; Lahontan's New Voyages, 1703; Lewis and Clark's Expedition, 1814; McKenney & Hall's Indian Tribes, 1836-44; Peter Martyr's De Novo Orbe, 1612; Mason's Pequot War, 1736; Cotton Mather's Magnalia Christi, 1702; Adair's American Indians, 1775; Beverly's Virginia, 1705; Burke's Virginia, 4 vols., 1804-16; De Bry's, Part I, America, 1590, etc. Among the first editions are very fine and complete collections of Lafcadio Hearn, John Addington Symonds and Robert Louis Stevenson—the latter being especially noteworthy. Not only is it unusually complete but each volume contains a check, a letter, a page of manuscript or some other autographic insertion signed by Stevenson, is in original wrappers, on cloth covers and has its own slide or solander case made of green levant morocco. Many rare volumes are from Stevenson's own library. Here is Stevenson's own copy of the Edinburgh Magazine, with manuscript list of contents in his handwriting giving the names of the various contributors; An Inland Voyage, 1878; Deacon Brodie, 1880, the rare original edition with the inscription "Charles Warner from the authors," and containing numerous pen and pencil markings and marginal notes in the handwriting of Henley and Stevenson; a remarkable association book is Stevenson's own copy of the privately issued Father Damien, Sydney, 1890. Inserted is the original permit issued by the Board of Health at Honolulu, dated May 20, 1889, and signed by its President, N. B. Emerson, and permitting the author to visit the Leper Settlement at Molokai. One of the star pieces of the collection is the Sunbeam Magazine, edited by R. L. Stevenson, while a student at Mr. Tomlinson's Day School in Edinburgh in 1866. The chief story, "The Banker's Ward," is by Stevenson, as are all the colored and uncolored illustrations, and some of the essays on southern cities. The Sunbeam was a manuscript magazine and only one copy was made. Stevenson is a collector's favorite. His popularity in the auction room has been steadily gaining on both sides of the Atlantic since the Williamson Sale in 1908.

PLATES FOR SALE

FOR SALE—The plates of "The South in the Building of the Nation," 13 vols. These cost $50,000.00 and about five thousand impressions have been run from them. We also have about one thousand sets of the work, 13 volumes, among which are a number of the De Luxe and Half De Luxe editions. These are works of art and could not be duplicated in America to-day, as they are bound in imported Turkish leather. It would take $25,000.00 to handle the proposition, but terms could be arranged. In addition we might add that "The South in the Building of the Nation" is conceded to be the only authentic Southern History on the market to-day. FREIGHT CONDITIONS

Make advisable the closest cooperation between publisher and manufacturer. Less expense, delay and loss of shipments will result if publishers will avoid the constant repeat orders for shipping small quantities to branch depots. Instead, ship maximum quantities monthly and greater satisfaction will result.

We advocate motor express shipments where available and quick work needed.

thrilling romance of the west

The Untamed

You have never met a character in fiction so strange and yet so fascinating as "Whistling Dan with the untamed soul." Within his mild eyes lurks the yellow light of beast anger, the same yellow that gleams in the eyes of his two strange comrades, the wolf devil-dog and the black stallion, for whom their master's word is their only law.

There's a girl, too, a brave, charming girl who fears Dan, yet loves him. There's a band of out-laws determined to "get" Dan just as he is determined to get them—but for a different reason.

A most unusual tale of the West—of stirring action, excitement and romance, touched with a weird, poetic fancy.
